PETA, short for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, is an animal rights organization founded in the United States in 1980 by two activists. PETA focuses on several areas, including efforts to eliminate animal testing, stop the use of animals in entertainment, and encourage plant-based diets. The organization uses campaigns, protests, and education to raise public awareness about animal welfare issues. Over the years, PETA has persuaded some companies to stop testing cosmetics on animals and to offer cruelty-free products. It has also worked with celebrities such as Natalie Portman, who supports veganism and has spoken out against using animals for fashion.
